Editorial

Over the last seven decades, the education scenario in India has undergone various changes but still we are far away which India dreamed after independence. Education plays important role in shaping our society and welfare of mankind. In spite of all attempts made for quality education but still several challenges are in front of us. One of such big challenge is to reducing socio-economic inequalities which is increasing day by day. Besides increasing inequalities, corruption, unemployment and poverty is increasing and the quality of life, health care and sanitation are getting worse, particularly in case of rural and semi-urban masses. The dream of peoples of modern India is still a distant goal to achieve. To face these challenges we have to address these issues in our researcher and project works. One of such platform is to publish the work done so that many more can be benefited and serve for the betterment of the humanity.
